

BOK CORPUS

BOK Jacques Brel September-December 2021

Akissi	Wisdom as a tool for justice in the Baoulé tradition
Daoud	The struggle of a shepard's son, from Djibouti to Belgium
Nicolas	Dealing with chronic pain (the rare example of cluster headaches)
Pia	Against food waste and for benevolence: l'Epicerie Libre
Tiziana	The union of needs and wants, or how to turn money into trust
Mél	Meditatie om naar jezelf en de wereld te luisteren
Sonia	Obtaining the recognition of paternity: a Congolese Belgian story
Marine	Returning to the source with Chinese medicine (the path to balance)
Chantal	Saga of a happy borderline person
Taslim	Ten years of struggle of an undocumented person
Beyza	Why sanitary pads should be free (A feminist rhetoric)
Fée-Niks	Circle to share dreams, and to stretch your imagination
Collectif Y'EN A MARRE	How to accompany an undocumented person through administrative processes
Amel	How to rethink 'work' when you have no financial security
Isabel	Taking control of your own health with essential oils
Flaka & Talu	Unlearning patriarchy in activism: the example of squats
Mathias	Practising listening when you are used to being in the centre
Ednan	Transforming the structural injustices we are born into a story from Kurdistan
Fadila	Breaking down prejudices to get closer to your neighbours (the experiment of Café Solidaire in the Cité Volta)
Kasia	Daring to express yourself: the explorations of a young witch
Juliana	Reinforcing our connection to ourselves and to the earth (energetic healing)
Şeref & Gamze	"Is the rose rose?": Singing multilingual music as political/cultural activism
Aicha & Nisrine	The 'Mam's de l'espoir' (moms of hope), the 5 blocks and their homework school
Valéria	Polyamory, or how to live love without hierarchies
Boris	Deconstructing a heterosexual norm with male thermal contraception
Awatif	Fighting (without subsidies) for solidarity with homeless women: the example of 'Job Dignity'
bodies of knowledge	Claiming public space for the exchange of non-dominant knowledge (in a tent)
Zapatistas	Learning in indigenous, autonomous municipalities in rural Mexico: listening to Zapatista's voices on education
Mam's de l'espoir	Fighting structural injustices in mainstream education – as mothers
Kim	How to pursue your life as an adopted by reconnecting with your roots (in Korea)
Maria	Knowing or re-knowing your unconscious heritage as an adoptee: the story of a weaver and her Bolivian origins
Arife	The central place of women in the Kurdish liberation movement
Sarah & Marie	Drawing courage from the revolution in Rojava: the experience of internationalist women
Sarah	Opening your ears with 'anarchic listening': concert by and for everyone (with crash course)

Sarah	Learning to speak the languages of the immigration: the commitment of a self-taught Instagrammer
Sylvie	Creating a utopia of solidarity in the city: the example of the La Poudrière community
Cintia	Sport as an anchor in the storm: some practices to take care of yourself as a resilient woman
Zeynep	Uniting international forces to counter sexist violence: the example of the Istanbul Convention
Aziouz	Testimony of a journalist on the situation of democracy in Algeria in the 1990s
Valéria + invité·e·s	Discover medicinal plants to learn about self-care and how to heal yourself
BOK	Reading of extraordinary tales for young and old
Ruth	Singing together as a source of joy: small choir for every-one
Kaouthar	Telling the History by deconstructing racist prejudices: Tunisia from antiquity to the present day
Nathalie	Writing to exist in the storm: a mother's story by her adopted daughter
Max	Self-management of menstrual flow is possible
Luisa	How to guard one's own limits in the "service" or "care" professions
Agnes	Solidarity as a way to emancipate from dependencies
Ingrid	Psychiatry vs. isolation: some intimate thoughts on the need for alternatives
Le collectif des Madres	How to fight police violence in our neighbourhoods
Amine	Europe as an illusion of a new El Dorado: the immigration of a "lost" generation
Jamil	Coexistence and reconciliation in Jammu and Kashmir: informing yourself and spreading the word
Rim	The occupation of Gécamines: resisting the violence of the colonial system through collective emancipation